Six graduate fellowships have been awarded by the University of Cincinnati by the National Science Foundation for the 1961-62 academic year.

The third is of a special kind in which the educational institution recognizes the christenings of coeducational programs conducted by that government agency by administering the programs.

Dr. Campbell Crockett, dean of UC's Graduate School, announced the fellowship holders will receive $1,750 per year. The University is given approximately $12,800 to help defray education costs.

Those holding the fellowships next year will be:

Edwin K. Annenberger, who will study mathematics, Caryl A. Brunner, engineering; Richard W. Geotz, chemistry; Richard K. Kaplan, engineering; David P. Robinson, chemistry; Rudolf M. Salinger, chemistry; and Brother Thomas A. Schorn of the Society of Mary, mathematics.

UC received one fellowship in the fields of agriculture, this NSF cooperative program and three in the second year. Now receiving their second grants for their graduate work at UC are Mr. Edward E. Byerly, Mr. Robinson, and Mr. Schorn.

Two NSF summer fellowships for graduate teaching assistants enabling them to study and do research this summer have been received by UC. They will be held by Albert Attallah, and Harold F. Nihon, both chemistry graduate students at UC.

Fort Jackson, S.C., March 21—Less than 24 hours after his former UC teammates had captured the NCAA basketball championship by ousting Ohio State's touted Buckeyes, Oscar Robertson is expected to arrive at Fort Jackson to begin a six-month tour of duty with Uncle Sam's team.

Although he had just concluded a fabulous rookie season with the Cincinnati Royals of the National Basketball Assn., the Big O was more inclined to talk about the accomplishments of his former college mates.

"It really didn't surprise me that the Bearcats won the little title," he said. "I saw them play a few games during the season and was impressed with their defensive ability. Now we've trailed almost entirely on the running game and when the opponents summoned their best, they virtually stopped us.

After spending some ten minutes talking about his former teammates, Robertson turned to the previous season, the second year. Now receiving a total of $217,000 for their research this summer have been awarded by the university. The committee, acting as a board of review, took evidence as to what occurred in Columbus. Its findings will not be made public, pending a report to Dr. Walt C. Langsam, executive vice president.

The committee is expected to make recommendations to President Longson.

In this case, possible measures could run from censure to suspension from the University.

Dr. Roscoe L. Barrow, dean of the UC College of Law, is chairman of the committee. It also includes Dr. Hilo G. Green, UC vice president and dean of faculties; representatives of the staffs of both women's and men's, and deans of the UC colleges in which the six students are enrolled.

The Columbus episode followed UC's 70-05 week-end victory over Ohio State in the NCAA championship finals at Kansas City, Mo.

Two Year College To Expand Starts Four New Programs

Expansion of the University College's offerings at the University next fall to include four new programs was announced by Dr. William E. Krueger, dean of this new UC two-year college.

One will be in the field of technology, management, with the Cincinnati Retail Merchants Association cooperating. Others will be in nuclear science, medical secretarial training, and nursery-school teacher training.

All will lead to degrees of Associate in Arts or Associate in Science, as do the six other programs introduced when the University College opened last September.

The Retail Merchants Association will provide scholarships for a number of qualified students in the retail management program.

Arrangements have been made with local retail stores to provide qualified students in this program with part-time work experience. Dr. Krueger added. Students will begin this work training in early November, so that they can get ready for the Christmas rush, he said.

They will continue working in December two afternoons a week and possibly Saturdays and will again participate in similar programs in January and April.

Young women who are not in college, in shopping courses, who enjoy working with children, can get valuable secretarial training for the program for nursery-school teachers.

The program will be offered in cooperation with the UC School of Home Economics.

Worked out in consultation with members of the Cincinnati Academy of Medicine, the program for medical secretaries will train young women to be skilled stenographers, bookkeepers, re-ceptionist, and laboratory side.

On completion of the UC program they will be qualified to work in doctors' suites and hospitals and clinics.

Noting the expectation of a growing demand for technicians in nuclear work in the next five years, Dr. Krueger reported a program in nuclear science will be added to the other University College programs in chemistry and biology to train laboratory technicians.

Five programs, including one in design, will open next fall at the new Princeton High School extension center of University College. Dr. Krueger also announced.

The design program, to be offered only at the UC Princeton Center, will give students basic technical knowledge and training in architectural and industrial design.

Other programs to be taught at the center will be arts, chemistry, electronics, and industrial management—similar to those now offered at the Burnet Woods campus at UC.

Sabin Honored

Dr. Albert B. Sabin, UC College of Medicine and Cincinnati Children's Hospital scientist who developed the Sabin live-virus polio vaccine, received March 23 in Philadelphia an honorary doctor of science degree from Temple University.

The ceremonies, marking the 60th anniversary of Temple's School of Pharmacy, are part of the university's Diamond Jubilee celebrations.

Dr. Sabin's citation, read by Dr. John G. Harbour, director of Health Services for Philadelphia, said, in part: "Shepherd in this field of man and this associate, people the world over will be spared a fear that for so long has chilled their hearts...his greatest reward will be the common awareness of longer lives and happier days he made possible for millions of his fellowmen."

What's it take to make the right connection?

Flints! Consider the problem. Western Electric manufactures the switching systems which connect some 60-million Bell telephones throughout the U. S. The average call over today's electromechanical system requires one million operations. All together, this interconnected equipment makes up the heart of what is, in effect, the largest computer in the country.

That's where Western Electric and you come in. The switching equipment for these "machines" involves an enormous manufacturing job carried on by our plants throughout the country. Because of the size and complexity of the requirements involved, we require quality standards far exceeding those of ordinary manufacturing. The size of this job presents an unusual challenge to the engineer who may save the Bell System many millions—by even by a small cost-reduction step.

While today's calls arrive at a priority on engineering, tomorrow's will be even more exciting. For even now the revolutionary Electronic Central Office is under field trial and promises to revolutionize the world of telephony. Future Western Electric engineers, working closely with their counterparts at Bell Telephone Laboratories, will concentrate heavily on developing manufacturing methods for this 1962 equipment.

Your Western Electric assignments may cover many of our other responsibilities as the world's leading communications manufacturer. Perhaps you'll work on advances in computer, or even on satellite communications.

Liberating Western Electric may be your right connection.

Opportunities exist for electrical, mechanical, industrial, and chemical engineers in Bell Telephone service, science, liberal arts, and business majors, for those who are ready now and for "Randy and Your Career" from your Placement Office. Or write Western Electric, Room 243, Western Electric building, 155 Broadway, New York 7, N. Y. and be sure your resume is addressed to "Randy and Your Career" from your Placement Office. ASME, Honorary Sponsors Annual Engineer Banquet

The Cincinnati chapter of the American Society of Mechanical Engineers is the sponsor of the ASME annual Engineer Banquet.

The banquet is open to all members, students and guests, and will be held at the Engineer and Student Center, University Club, 1349 East McMillan, at 6:30 p.m. on Monday, May 7.

The program will include a speech by Professor Herbert Koeppel, a well-known engineer who will speak on the Civil War, and the senior engineering student from "Our Teachers."

Honored guests will be the mechanical engineering faculty and their wives, and a representative of the student chapter. The banquet will be under the sponsorship of representatives of ASME and Pi Tau Sigma at a cost of $5.75.

Letters To The Editor

To the Editor:

A political conspiracy has occurred leading me to suspect my guilt as a party to the contest, but also protect my innocence as a victim of such a conspiracy, I hereby present the scheme. In order to publicize the film "Operation Abolition," which I plan to view, I do not voluntarily oppose, Larry Starkey urged me to write a letter protesting the showing of the film. In fact, Larry collaborated in its writing during one of our classes, and so I will contribute my voice to the News Record. This letter was a devious plot to assure student interest in the plans of the hopes that would mean so much to many. A political company, indeed, is all I look upon.

However, my letter but something in the transitional from my hands, to Larry's, to the News Record: one word in the fourth paragraph, and the entire fifth paragraph. Needless to say, these words were crucial. I realize that the two politicians have lost a lot of things in recent months, and there is no need to lose a lot for words. Especially when they have assisted in the writing of the words.

But neither a false-hearted apology nor a hastily-conceived explanation can we see a salutary example of Republicanism in action.

The Campus Beat

Street Of Signs
by Howard Krugger

Seville Street must have brought many sighs from students the other day, for 46 cars were tagged along the street by city police. Each tag was $8.93, which made it an expensive day for residents in Dabney or French Halls.

The day before, city police had put up signs banning parking in order that the street could be swept. The signs had been in place at least twelve hours before the car drivers entered their cars there.

This didn't please the residents, because the cleaners cannot do a thorough job when cars are parked in the street. The drivers came to police and tagged all 46 of the vehicles.

As if that wasn't enough, I was doing my rounds in the smoker recently, when I picked up on that the radio was a message from a city police cruiser to meet him on Seville Street. It seemed that a resident had an extraordinary sign to be placed outside his house to prohibit parking while the furniture removal trucks were required to stand aside. Eight cars had been parted between the signs. The furniture removal trucks couldn't get near the place.

I answered the officer's call, the officer called me and the drivers called me. In turn, the cars were probably students' vehicles. The drivers got them to move, and the drivers drove and got them to move-...never a day away and there I thought it was a pretty decent gesture.

Grammar errors in the two preceding paragraphs are cleaned periodically by the city, and students should not let the typographical errors put up for this reason. Second, registering your car is a matter of common sense and may save you from a heavy fine.

The Soviet Challenge

Krushchev Can't Lose

by Lynn Jones

Leon Volkov, Soviet affairs expert from Newsweek magazine, spoke at the Student Council convention this week. His topic was "Russia and the United Nations." Russia has a definite strong hand in UN negotiations, Krushchev can't lose much. If I think I would make the strong demands only short of a major armed conflict in Laos," he said.

If the US is willing to pay the price, Kennedy will lose prestige as the "new young dynamic leader," he added. "Russia will win.

Yet the new administration will lose prestige for failing to bring about a Laos question and bring peace. If it does not accept Krushchev's demands, he said.

"I predict long negotiations."

3000 books were sent to foreign countries and this year greater numbers are expected.

By sending speech texts to foreign countries 'it is hoped to demonstrate or march around the Clifton area. He got 15 cents per copy. Entered as second class matter at the Ohio's Number One College Weekly.

The News Record believes that the Speech Abroad program is very worthwhile and can be very rewarding. We urge students to donate as many books as possible to help make this plan a success.

Speech Abroad

Speech Abroad, a nationwide project, has been organized to send speech textbooks to foreign countries. Dr. Martin Bryan, UC associate professor of speech and the National Chairman of Speech Abroad, has started the project locally.

By sending speech texts to foreign countries it is hoped that some of the language barrier will be broken. Last year 3000 books were sent to foreign countries and this year a greater number is expected.

UC students can help Speech Abroad by donating their texts, after final exams. Any books that will be exchanged for speech texts by the UC Bookstore. The speech texts from UC will then be sent to Japan.

The News Record believes that the Speech Abroad program is very worthwhile and can be very rewarding. We urge students to donate as many books as possible to help make this plan a success.

OSU Falls Again As Netmen Win Coke Mermen Finish Fourth In AAU Meet

Compiled entirely of University of Cincinnati swimming team members, the Coca Cola Swim Club finished fourth in team standings last weekend in the National AAU swimming meet.

However, only one collegiate team, Southern California, finished ahead of the Coca Cola "Cats," the other two being the New Haven and Newtriver Swim Clubs.

Highlight of the meet as far as the Coca Cola squad was concerned was their performance in the 400-yard freestyle relay. They finished second with 3:18.0. The relay team composed of Gary, Helferich, Jim Marchetti, Jim Norman and Joe Alkire averaged 49.5 seconds per man per 100 yards.

"Everybody raised their eyebrows when we did 3:18.0 in the relay," said a happy coach Paul Hartlaub, "because that will be our (UC) relay team next year."

Hartlaub used a new American record of 5:26.0 in the 400-yard individual medley time trials but slipped to 5:31.1 in the finals for a fourth place finish. He was fifth in the 220-yard butterfly (2:17.0) and fifth in the 440-yard freestyle (4:29.8) as well.

Alkire was fifth out of 112 entrants in the 100-yard freestyles, the distance in 58.3 seconds.

Eight national championship medals were brought home by the Cincy aggregation. Alkire won two for his efforts while Marchetti won one, Norman one and Heinrich four.

Hartlaub thinks has won seven championship medals in the last two weekends having won three in the NCAA meet.

In summing up the AAU meet, coach Hartlaub replied: "It was very encouraging. Encouraging because everyone was a member of the UC swimming team."

The Eye of the Hurricane.

A new play by Nora Stirling, playwright for the University Players, is being presented by the American Commons Club this week. The play, entitled "The Eye of the Hurricane," is set during the 1929 hurricane season in New Orleans and tells the story of a young woman who is caught in the eye of the hurricane.

The play opens with a scene of the hurricane, and the audience is taken on a journey through the eye of the storm. The characters, played by students from the University of Cincinnati, are forced to make difficult decisions as they try to survive the hurricane's fury.

The play is directed by Professor John Smith, who has been a member of the University Players for many years. He is joined by a talented cast of actors, including Sara Brown, Alex Green, and Jack Johnson.

The play is being presented in the American Commons Club's main theater, and tickets are available at the box office. Don't miss this powerful and moving production of "The Eye of the Hurricane."

Dewey Wins Competition

For the best original design of a building component in aluminum, John L. Dewey, fifth-year student in the six-year architecture program of the College of Applied Arts, has won the $200 Reynolds Aluminum competition for architectural students.

Selection of the winner was announced by the American Institute of Architects, which administers what is planned to become an annual competition.

The national prize will be divided equally between Dewey and the University. Earlier Dewey was announced as winner of the $300 Reynolds Aluminum prize among UC architecture students.

The national prize will be awarded to John L. Dewey, 22, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert L. Dewey, and a graduate of Purcell High School.

Dewey's design, inspired by a class project to work out a possible mail for a Cincinnati urban renewal project, is intended especially for downtown pedestrian place in such applications as display centers, pedestrian rest areas, information booths, or bus stop shelters.

Presentation of the $3000 will take place during the AIA convention and installation of the American Institute of Architects, held in Philadelphia, April 25 in Philadelphia. The scholarship is presented annually to an upper-classman in the College of Applied Arts.

Dewey's design offers a simple, fast method of installing variable modular structures adaptable to either temporary or relatively permanent service. The design structure is poised, as a table, on a minimum number of integral columns. The building's enclosing components are suspended from the overhead structure.

Following his 1962 UC graduation, Dewey plans to do advanced work at a graduate architectural school, then combine teaching of architecture with active practice.

Republican Club To Offer Discussion Of House Film

by Roger LeCompte

The Student Republican Club will sponsor a debate between the Rev. Robert T. O'Brien and Larry Starkey, A&S '63, on the subject of the House Un-American Activities Committee and their film "Open-End Abolition." The date of the debate is Thursday, April 13, at 7:30 p.m., in Rooms 303-5 of the Union.

The Rev. O'Brien is the minister of the First Unitarian Church and the committee against the film concerns the student demonstrations in San Francisco, and the film is being shown Tuesday, April 1, at 7:30 p.m., in the Union for those interested in seeing the film before hearing the debate.

In a prepared statement for News Record Starkey said, "I think that most people who have seen the film, and who have read the documented proof of the existence of Communist influence over the students, have no doubts as to its authenticity.

"No one has challenged the individual scenes, and I think they speak for themselves. Out of context, or in context, they visibly prove Communist influence over altoona-ville young minds."

In a statement to the News Record, Rev. O'Brien said, "I have seen the film three times, and the more I see the film the more I am persuaded that the term "forgery" is not too strong to characterize it."

"It is obvious from the film that the Communists present expressed a vehement opposition to the committee but no students, to my knowledge, have said that they participated in the demonstration because they were misled or duped. The Communists at the scene of the hearings were not there to organize the students but were there in answer to subpoenas issued by the House Un-American Activities Committee."

"Had the committee wanted to prevent the demonstration from becoming disorderly, it could have exercised its authority within the hearing room at the first indication of misconduct on the part of witnesses and spectators. The committee also had the authority to request from the San Francisco Police Department that the demonstrators not enter city hall."

"I can only conclude that the House Un-American Activities Committee made use of a situation which they permitted to evolve in order to exploit its propaganda possibilities in support of themselves."

Dear Dr. Frood:

I have a confession. For the first time in my life I have been lying to my coach. All my life I have been trying to learn how to whistle. I just can't. Please, will you tell me how to whistle?

Puckered

DEAR PUCKERED: Watch the birds. Notice how they gather a pocket of air deep within the breast, then push thin jets of this air into the throat, through the larynx, up and around the curled tongue, and then bounce the air from the roof of the mouth out through the teeth (which act like the keyboard on a piano). Practice this, in no time your friends will be amazed at the beautiful, wubby trills that flow from your mouth.

Dear Dr. Frood: I have a confession. My coach is writing this letter for me because I am illiterate. We want to know if I get to learn how to read to get into college. I am the best football player in the state.

Dear Dr. Frood: Lam not just out of luck, X, unless you learn how to read diagrams and count to eleven.

ARE YOU READY FOR THE FLOOD? Most students today live a carefree, devil-may-care existence—buying their Luckies day to day. Only a handful have had the good sense to set aside an emergency cache of three or four Lucky cartons, wrapped in oilskin. When the dams break—they'll be ready. Will you?

Change to Luckies and get some taste for a change!

Lucky Strike Presents:

Dear Dr. Frood: I just can't seem to get in step with the rest of the students here. They enjoy parties, dancing, singing and dating. None of these things interest me at all. Am I behind the times or what?

DEAR LEFT: You're in the right time; you're just one of our squares.

Dear Dr. Frood: Hamlet killed Polonius. Macbeth stabbed Duncan. Richard murdered his little nephew. Other strange deaths occurred. Titus served Tamora her two sons in a pie before killing her. Don't you think this obsession with violence would make an excellent subject for a term paper?

Dear Dr. Frood: I don't know what to do.

DEAR ENGLISH: I don't, and my advice to you is to stop running around with that crowd.

Lucky Strike presents:

Dear Dr. Frood: I'm afraid you're just out of luck.
