Bennis relaxes in Nassau after ‘busiest month’

President Bennis currently is on vacation in the Bahamas after what he described as a “busiest month” in his presidency.

He is scheduled to return next week, saying that he is looking forward to “returning to the president’s office.”

Bennis described the month as one of preparation and delivery of a quarterly report, in which he then characterized the Board of Regents and the new library was made at the Board of Regents meeting in early January.

A review from the Chicago O'Hare Airport, Bennis said, “I really appreciated the opportunity to speak at the University. And I think that at least one person that I talked to did appreciate the opportunity to speak at the University.”

Bennis told reporters that they did not expect the author Alexander Bennis to become a professor at the University. He said that the academic year at the University is not viewed as being simply a time for students to relax, but rather as a time for them to focus on their studies.

Salary inequalities

The Enquirer reported that Bennis said, “I really appreciate the opportunity to speak at the University. And I think that at least one person that I talked to did appreciate the opportunity to speak at the University.”

Bennis acknowledged that there was a lot of stress on the institution, but that there was also an awareness of the need to maintain an appropriate balance.

“A lot of work needs to be done,” he said. “We need to maintain focus, but also preserve a sense of balance.”

Undergraduate, graduate, merger proposal

By JUDY PIER

A joint task force of undergraduate and graduate students from the university has been working on a proposal to merge the two institutions, and will meet this week to discuss the proposal further.

“Overall, it seems to be a good idea,” one student said. “It would allow us to share resources and improve our education.”

The proposal calls for a merger of the two institutions, with undergraduate students remaining at the current location, while graduate students would move to a new campus.

Undergraduate students would continue to receive financial aid and have access to the same resources as before, while graduate students would have access to additional resources.

The task force is considering various options for the new campus, including the possibility of building a new campus near the current location.

Women’s basketball team out of State tournament

By JACQUELYN HICKS

The UC women’s basketball team is out of the State tournament, and will not be attending the upcoming game.

The team lost to the University of Dayton in the first round of the tournament, and will not have the opportunity to play in the final four.

UC women’s basketball coach Mary Jo Hamann said, “It was a tough game, but we fought hard and gave our best effort.”

UC president Bennis Feb. 19, 1974, offered an explanation for the decision not to send representatives to the tournament, saying, “We felt that it was in the best interest of the university to focus on our own games rather than send representatives to the tournament.”

Office of HEW visited the campus

The Office of HEW visited the campus to examine the budget of the university, and to ensure that the institution is complying with its obligations.

The university has been working on a budget for the upcoming fiscal year, and the Office of HEW was in attendance to review the budget and ensure that it is in compliance with federal regulations.

Samuel Freud proposed a new library to fill the role of the paleontologist, the role of the psychiatrist and the role of the psychoanalyst. Freud said that paleontologists have done great work in reconstructing the history of life on Earth, but that they have not been able to reconstruct the history of the mind. Similarly, psychiatrists have done great work in understanding the human mind, but they have not been able to reconstruct the history of the mind. Freud proposed a new library that would do both of these things. The library would be filled with books about the history of the mind, and it would also have books about the history of the body. The library would be a center for research into the relationship between the mind and the body, and it would be a place for people to come to learn about the history of the mind and the body.
Program head nixes plan to sell condoms in residence hall

By BOB BOWMAN

The Calhoun Hall Condom Committee, formed in the spring to discuss condom availability in Calhoun Hall Friday was turned down by the University's Philosophy Committee.

The committee, formed by chairman Steve Sereda, Evans, "The selling of the condoms in Calhoun Hall is not a necessary service and would not become a part of the residence hall program."

However, students were installed in the Calhoun Hall reception desk to lobby, and a condom machine was installed on the same level.

"Those students wishing to use Calhoun Hall reception desk, epidemic that is nationwide," said Evans.

Peter Thoms if it is legal to sell condoms in the residence halls was illegal under these two statutes.

Thomas said there are no problems with selling condoms to students under 18 because of several reasons. Condoms are legal to sell to the public.

Sereda said Evans "may have a valid point" about the sale of condoms in the residence halls not marking the number of cases of VD on campus.

There are no similar local problems. Evans said that condoms are not sold to students in the residence halls and if it is legal, the students don't go to LaRrann's.

"But the most significant reason the students don't go to LaRrann's is to avoid the personal contact," they said.

"The committee's original proposal for a condom machine is not a necessary service for the residence hall program," they continued.

Evans asked University Counsel Peter Thoms if it is legal to sell condoms in the residence halls and if it is legal for University employs to sell them.

Sereda said both legal as long as condoms are not sold to students.

The women's varsity basketball team will not be competitive in the 1974-75 season, according to a letter released by the Athletic Department. This is because of a clerical error in submitting the team's application.

Parts-time women's athletic director Jean Turku informed the editor of The News Record that the varsity team would not be able to compete in the state tournament because they had been left out of the season.

The university's Office of Athletics told the women's basketball team that they would not be able to compete in the state tournament, and that they should not compete in the tournament.

Problems of dormitory life are similar to living anywhere else

By JUliE SENTER

The News Record asked several dormitory students what they considered to be the main problems of dormitory living. Of course there were the typical complaints about clothes lines and parking, but no one could agree that the problems of living in a dorm are insurmountable. Everyone said they are trying to live together.

SUllI HILLARD

SuII Hilliard, a freshman in nursing living in Sander Hall, said that one of the main problems with Sander is the size of the building.

"The dorm is so large that the maintenance people have a hard time servicing the great number of units in a reasonable amount of time. They do try, but the number of students overwhelms them. If you have stopped up a drain or burned something, it takes forever to come and get it fixed, and they always have to come around three in the morning, just for a tiny thing like sweet "

SANDER HALL

Barb Schmitt, a freshman in Arts and Science, said that the noise is a big problem with living in the dorms.

"It's a must, you have to make people living together, and therefore, more choices for personality clashes to occur. I think people lack the consideration for other people is the biggest problem I've encountered."

JIM ROTH

A graduate of Western State College, John Nogami, the TUC Faculty Lounge, said that the three bigger problems of student bargaining issues are primarily application forms; contact Georgene Reg. No. 73-05'0375T

"Zardoz," a new low-budget, sci-fi film written and directed by John Boorman, who brought you "Deliverance."

"In "Zardoz," Sean Connery runs around in the jungle fighting the classics. The film is a combination of several classic characterizations of the anti-hero turned into one of the main characters of the film. In the words of Betty Wolfe, "It is a poor film.

The picture's problem is that the direction is so self-conscious and the film is to be taken completely seriously. It is a complete lack of realism and is not as difficult to watch as one might expect. This futility of purpose mars the film.

Berlin Songs of the Twenties was hosted by Wolfgang Roth

"Berlin Songs of the Twenties," performed last weekend in the University Dining Room, was hosted by Wolfgang Roth. The pianist, designer, and artist and performer. The concert was hosted by the German Man and Speech Department.

Roth has designed many sets for Broadway, opera, and film productions and for opera in New York ("Le nozze," "Cosi fan tutte," and "Rusmore") as well as in other cities in the U.S. Between each of these assignments he designed for the Cincinnati Chamber Orchestra.

Roth was a Master Teacher for Design at the University of Cincinnati College of Fine Arts. He has also designed the University's Ballroom and Colloge of Design, courses, and lectures.

The concert was based on the poetry of English Bricks, is known as "Berlin Songs," and by the title of Rossini's "Barber of Seville." The exhibit was presented in the Cincinnati Community House in New York. Last October, in one of his works was shown at the Academy of Arts in the Cincinnati Country Day School, which will present Gone With the Wind's "Hunger and Thirst," a 3-D film, March 4 and 7 in the school auditorium.

The play will be performed in three acts, each with the gradual, methodical development of the situation of the three characters, John, Milan, and Walter. The narrative that has been performed in the Cincinnati Country Day School, and is, for the first time, "Hunger and Thirst" has been performed in the Cincinnati Country Day School.

"Salvation," a five minute sketch by Johnstone, will be staged in a set of the dinner, preceding "Hunger and Thirst." The four-page poem is a brave language exercise.

The morning production will be the most colorful and extreme effort in the history of Drama at Country Day.

Sloppy play marks cager loss to Davidson

By NANCY HILLY

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. - With tournament hopes riding on the outcome of the UC-Jacksonville game, players and fans at the beach watched the Bearcats fall short. For the second consecutive second, Davidson sunk three-pointer with 2.4 seconds remaining in the game to win, 84-82.

"They have a good post player and a good outside threat," said junior forward Amy 475-5221. "I thought we had enough chances, but we couldn't get the ball in the basket when we needed to." Davidson coach Gary Williams said after the game that the Bearcats are "a great team - we should have won by 20." Davidson overpowered UC with its height and outside shooting.

"We played well against them last year in Cincinnati," coach Bill Miller said. "We were able to control them with our zone defense. We'll have to play that defense again to be successful in this game." UC is 2-8 in the last 10 games, while Davidson is 12-0 in its last 12 games.

National letter of intent deadline near; football recruiting coming to a close

By LARRY RENHART

"This is a big time of the year for UC football coach Ron Moore," said Moore last week, describing the football recruiting season as it heads into the last several weeks.

"It is generally agreed that all of the coaches are busy because the date for signing National Letters of Intent (NLI) is near," Moore explained. "A letter of intent has been moved forward from April 15 to February 2, which allows football programs to begin recruiting in earnest sooner than before." Moore said that UC is among the first group of programs to begin recruiting this year.

Kelly, who coaches the offensive line, said that the process of filling out the NLI (a short form-letter) of intent is no longer a "secret." The letter must be signed by the player's parents, and then the letter is sent to the University of Cincinnati. Kelly said that they are bound to play with the school of their choice after signing the letter.

"I think that the signing process is more open," Moore said. "I think that we are more transparent with the players and their families. The signing process is no longer a dark one. It is now a public one." Moore said that UC has been proactive in signing letters of intent with the school's football program.

When a player signs a national letter of intent, he is not bound to play with the UC football program. If he actually does play in that conference, he may be able to go to another school with just a "gentleman's agreement," Moore explained. However, if a player signs a "hard letter," he is bound to play with the school of his choice, even if he does not actually play in that conference. Moore explained that the player decides which team he wants to go to and signs the letter for the "school." Moore explained that a school is the final entity in the decision-making process, and that the player is not necessarily bound to play with the school of his choice. Moore said that the signing process is a "complex one," and that it is not necessarily a "team sport," but rather a "personal one." Moore explained that the player is "in control of his own destiny," and that he is able to make his own decision about where he wants to play.

SOPHOMORE GARRY KAMSTRA was on the inside of a basket in last Wednesday's game with Xavier. Kamstra played a decisive part in the Davidson-UC game yesterday as he had in all other contests.
