Committee reviews proposed changes in A&S curriculum

by Tom Nolan

NR Staff Reporter

The Correlation Committee of A&S has recommended to the Faculty of A&S for approval at its Nov. 13 meeting. The proposal recommends that entering freshmen who have achieved an S.A.T. score of 700 or above on the ACT and in the Verbal section, be granted three credit hours toward the degree. The proposal was to be presented to the faculty for a vote at this meeting.

Devin Weichert asserted that matters concerning curriculum would have the primary attention of the Correlation Committee for the remainder of this academic year. He could make no statement as to when issues would be decided, nor how soon they would be presented to the faculty.

The Correlation Committee has several suggestions on curriculum before it and is considering all of them for future proposals to the faculty, these include recommendations for changes in the foreign language, science, math, sociology, requirements; for definitions of and distinctions between behavioral and social sciences, and for changes concerning the humanities.

The committee, chaired by Dean Charles Weichert of A&S, will also discuss the possibility of changing to a four-credit hour course system. They will make recommendations on the Black Studies program which is currently being developed on the campus and upon other matters pertaining to curriculum.

One item concerning English requirements will be presented to the faculty of A&S for approval at its Nov. 13 meeting. The proposal recommends that entering freshmen who have achieved an S.A.T. score of 650 or above, or have scored above 28 on the ACT, be granted three credit hours toward the degree. Senate passes proposed all University Constitution

by Rick Stillwell

Wednesday's right meeting of the Student Senate was highlighted by the passage of the Senate's proposal for a University Constitution and for a system of government.

The meeting began with Student Sen ate President's report to the Senate. In it, he reported that his discussions with various faculty members continued until the Speaker, Brian Zamek, announced that no discussion or action on the bill was out of order because the number of Senator was not less than the number set in the Constitution.

The Senate passed by acclamation the Student Senate's report to the Board. The report included a copy of the proposed constitution. Constitution was to be submitted to the University Senate. It was then approved by the University Senate. The Senate then heard the report of the constitution committee. The constitution was approved by the Senate.

"The Board of Education has historically been chosen by one group in Cincinnati, the Citizen's School Committee. We think that on a seven man board there is room for people with our type of youthful perspective," thus were the words of Mr. Robert Brown who is running for the Cincinnati School Board. One plank in their platform is to get away from sequence courses. Mr. Brown said that "there are always a component basis for construction of schools. This would mean that rooms in the particular school. "This would allow students to take all the courses they wish," he added.

"I'm running for the Board because I feel the Board is in need of a broader variety of courses will make classroom material more relevant by placing the choice of material in the hands of the initiating and final chapter president of each school," he added. Mr. Brown added, "students should be allowed, with their parents permission, to take any course that they wish." The Cincinnati School Board has always operated. Also proposed under the new system, Mrs. Paul said, "The all-chapter average for Theta was 2.969 and the all-active average for Theta was 2.759. The all-chapter average was 2.949."

Bra-less revolution faces lack of support in Cincy

Sue Stenger
NR Staff Reporter

Conservatism, the key word of Cincinnati, has marked the pace of the bra-less revolution in the city.

Unlike some of the area's inhabitants, the no-bra revolution has failed to reach monumental proportions in the Queen City. Both physical and psychological comfort are reasons cited for its lack of support.

"Girls just don't feel right in everyday life," said a local salesgirl, "without a bra." She explained that the function of a bra is not to restrict but to emphasize more feminine contours.

"Let's face it," she continued, "the only girls who can afford to go bra-less look like boys."

Sales have remained unaffected by the so-called revolution. Girls wearing junior sizes are usually still under the supervision of parents and must continue family tradition. Women past thirty-five have completely scoffed at the idea of non-support.

Surprisingly, college girls have also lacked enthusiasm for the bra-less look. Bra sales in campus stores have not dropped substantially.

When asked their opinions, the co-eds were almost in unanimous agreement. They frankly stated that the non-permitted look "is alright if you want to flop around a lot."

Another reason cited against the look was centered around health. The pecs, which now receive no support, would sag, causing great muscular discomfort.

Also, the unsupported bosom would become very unsightly because of the sagging. Witnesses the foldout of African ladies in National Geographic Magazine.

An original solution to this problem was posed by a Radio-TV engineer. To alleviate the sag, he suggested a girl could spend fifteen minutes a day standing on her head.

Most UC students feel that the "revolution" is just a fad that most girls cannot afford to go bra-less.

schools' financial position, especially with regard to state and federal aid. It is Mrs. Schloss' opinion that state aid is not being equitably distributed, and federal aid is not being effectively applied in the area it is most needed.

Mrs. Schloss believes that there must be more curriculum relevant to the needs of students. She said she is in favor of more experimentation in learning for the community in the School Board decision-making process.

She also stressed the great importance of involving the community in the School Board decision-making process. She offered two reasons for this. First, the more participation, the better the ideas, and thus the better the decisions made. Second, the community will be more receptive to decisions which they help make.

When questioned by the League of Women Voters about educational policy and how it should be determined, Mrs. Schloss commented, "While it is the ultimate responsibility of the Board of Education to set policy and of the superintendent to direct administration, parents, community leaders, teachers, administrators, and students, all have roles in the decision-making process."

One of the most important tasks of the board is to work out with the other concerned groups specific and constructive ways that they can feed into the decision-making process.

Students' relation to community discussed at Candidates' Fair

On Saturday afternoon, Oct. 25, the main lounge of the Student Union was the scene of the Candidates' Fair. The nineteen candidates for City Council appeared there to answer questions and discuss complaints with anyone who desired to participate.

The sponsor, the League of Women Voters, a non-partisan organization, desired to aid the voter in making logical and sound choices on Nov. 4, provided this meeting as an opportunity for the voter to personally meet the candidates.

When questioned on issue number 1, the candidates replied in favor of reducing the voting age to nineteen. William Keating, a Republican endorsed candidate, commented that in comparison to the last generation, today's "young people are more mature, advanced, and exposed to much more." He felt that the "whole world is brought closer to them."

When questioned on issue number 2, the candidates supported Vote 19, stated, "the artificial 'finding of maturity at 21 is just that, many are, mature at 19 year old."

When questioned on the recent moratorium, Cincinnati Mayor Carroll, all of whom are experienced in human relations.

Distribution of SDS literature at high schools called illegal

by Randy Klein
NR Staff Reporter

William E. Spreen, principal of Sycamore High School in Cincinnati, was interviewed by News Record Oct. 23, in an attempt to discover why the distribution of SDS literature on high school grounds is prohibited.

At dismissal time on Sept. 18, six persons attempted to sell a newspaper published by the SDS national office in Chicago at Sycamore High. School officials advised them that they were trespassing and the SDS members dispersed without incident.

On the morning of Sept. 23, a number of large window panes were discovered smashed and SDS posters were found glued to other windows. The next day several SDS members appeared to distribute a pamphlet. They left when they were informed that the police had been called. More windows were broken that night.

Mr. Spreen said: "With the cooperation of the Montgomery county police, it has been determined that the persons who have attempted to distribute SDS literature on our campus are not local people. Definite identification has established the fact that several of these persons are from Cleveland and Columbus, that they are known SDS members and have been on the campuses of several area high schools. As yet, we have no specific information on the identity of those who were responsible for the broken windows."

Mr. Spreen said that the nature of the SDS literature was definitely comic and that it did not fulfill an educational purpose. The reason, he said, that the members were asked to leave was because the literature itself was commercial and that no commercial-type literature (that literature for sale or for advertisement of an event, group or idea) was permitted to be passed out on campus, especially if it had not received approval by school authorities. Even groups advertising church revivals have been turned down.

The SDS members violated Section 3313.30 of the Ohio Revised Code which states: first, during school hours no person other than students, staff or faculty shall enter upon or be present upon school grounds and premises without permission from the principal or his designated agent.

Secondly, persons desiring to enter upon school grounds or premises who have not obtained permission in advance must, upon entering, report directly to the office of the principal to obtain such permission.

Lastly, presence upon school grounds other than in conformance with the provisions of these regulations shall constitute a trespass and shall be subject to prosecution.

"We find little or no support for SDS objectives or for SDS presence on campus. Not only do our students appear to be receptive to an SDS organizational appeal, they actually appear to be hostile as a result of what they have read and observed...."

done to offer students a range of alternatives between apathy and violence... . The Cincinnati change which fans the committee and may not be decided upon for many months, includes the possible granting of credit for Community Involvement and for Studies Abroad.

The feasibility and desirability of raising admission requirements of the College of Arts and Sciences is an issue, as is a review of A&S courses regardless of college affiliation at the time the courses were taken. Other areas to be looked into are those of the establishment of a College Committee on Promotion and Tenure, change of residency requirements of students seeking to graduate from A&S, and a study of the College Advisory system.

In conclusion, the committee feels that issues pertaining to curriculum are the most pressing at this time and it shall continue to devote its efforts to resolving them first. Dean Weichert again expressed his regret that so much time must be taken with each issue, but he states that this is the only and best method to achieve the goals of changing curriculum. It will not be possible for the committee to review the other issues mentioned until the curriculum is resolved and it is apparent that this is going to take a very long time.

proved to be an alternative based on Secretary Finch’s endorsement; however, Altman pointed out. “The importance of what the Secretary has to say doesn’t lie, then, with the fact, that he recognizes the existence of the program, but with the future actions which he and the department of HEW may take to transcend the purpose of the program to dealing with specific points raised between student and community people.”

Sixty more students went through a second training program this past week after 40 had undergone a pilot project this summer. Another training program will be held in about two weeks due to increasing interest in becoming involved with the program.

Altman asserted that it was the students who will make the program work and “are the ones who will be using the lines of communication and resources which the Cincinnati Experience tries to make available”.

Pick of the Litter
by David Litt

I think I am finally settling into a groove. For the third consecutive week I was about 11-2, this past week being only 10-1-1. Although not great, at least decent. So my total stands at 39 right, 14 wrong, and 3 ties. Letters have been pouring in from all over, and therefore would hasten to go on a list this week, I would however like to dedicate this week's picks to the Pinball Wizards on the 13th floor of Calhoun.

OAKLAND AT CINCINNATI: Mr. Cook should see much duty this week running the offense. I hope he is not too rusty. A great day by Cook could almost make the game close. Laides Katz, just cause Miami tied the Raiders don't think... Raiders by 14 Nipper Sandbox.

SAN DIEGO AT DENVER: This could be the first in a series of upsets. That is, I will be very upset if Denver wins this one after almost beating Houston last week. Should be a dull game. I know Brad--pick the Nuts. Not this one. Chargers by 9.

MIAMI AT NEW YORK: I was almost sick waiting for the Jet-Patriot final last week. Listen Joe, do me a favor, win this one fast and easy. Jets by 10.

DALLAS AT CLEVELAND: I have been told that I don't predict enough upsets. Also Goose and various other Clevelanders have told me not to take the Browns. Look, they did it last year, and well, I pray alot, Browns by 3. Really.

GREEN BAY AT PITTSBURGH: A look at the standings finds the Pack last only one game behind the Vikings. I don't think we want to lose this one. Maybe, just maybe, the Pack WILL be back. Packers by 7.

CHICAGO AT MINNESOTA: This could be a nice juicy upset. But I correctly number the Vikings winning earlier this year 10-0. It is Minneapolis? Right Linda? Grant and Co. have the Pack down their necks. So, Vikings by 17.

SAN FRANCISCO AT DALLAS: I have been told that I don't predict many One-Of-A-Kind picks of the Litter. This week's picks to the Pinball Wizards on the 13th floor of Calhoun.

WASHINGTON AT BALTIMORE: I've had it with Baltimore. I should have known Johnny U. is through. I am certain Mr. Lombardi wants this one bad, Kathleen. Hang in there Baltimore. The 49ers game wasn't a mistake. Redskins by 8. O.K. Lip?

GREEN BAY AT CINCINNATI: For all the New Yorkers I should pick the Giants, but I am not sure to take the Browns. For all the people all of the time. 4ers by about 6.

WASHINGTON AT BALTIMORE: I've had it with Baltimore. I should have known Johnny U. is through. I am certain Mr. Lombardi wants this one bad, Kathleen. Hang in there Baltimore. The 49ers game wasn't a mistake. Redskins by 8. O.K. Lip?

Last season's wrestling team compiled a 9-7-1 dual meet record, the best in six years, and this season's statistics promise to be even better. Coach Mahan has improved the program ten-fold.

One thing that the vastly improved program needs is more student interest, especially from the girls.

Coach Mahan would like to add a new dimension to UC's grappling program. He wants to have girls help conduct the home matches. They would be in charge of tickets, distribution of programs, seating of fans, keeping score, and taking care of team records. The girls will wear uniforms appropriate to Cincinnati (Red and Black) and the style will be selected by the group.

The concept of girls helping with wrestling matches is not unique to the Bearcats. Other schools have been doing it with success for years.

Any girl interested in helping the Cats or wishing to receive further information should contact Coach Mahan in 306 Laurence Hall.

Intercollegiate wrestling is rapidly gaining respectability and deserves greater student interest. Some of the matches these girls will be helping with include Notre Dame and the University of Tennessee.

do you have to give up your identity to make it in a big corporation?

You've heard the stories: One big corporation forbids you to wear anything but white shirts. Another says it wants you to be "creative"—and gives you a 4-pound rule book telling you exactly how to do it. Yet another doesn't want you to buy a more expensive car than your boss because "it wouldn't look right."

Is this really happening in American business?

Have companies become so rigid and fossilized that they're scared of people who don't fit the "norm"?

Not this company.

We are not hung up on trivia like that. The advances General Telephone & Electronics has made didn't come from people hiding behind organization charts and sitting at the right time.

They came from people who used their brains. People who revolutionized picture-taking with the Sylvania flashcube, who developed the high-energy liquid laser, who came up with the sharpest color TV picture in the world, who pioneered instant electronic stock market quotations, and so on.

We are looking for more people like this—people who aren't afraid to stand up and try themselves out.

We are an equal opportunity employer. All you need to make it with us is a good head on your shoulders.

Moratorium Misinterpretation

Q. "It has come to the attention of the University of Cincinnati Student Government that some instructors at U.C., in effect, by conscious premeditation, or out of ignorance of the facts, have, irrationally interpreted President Langsam's statement concerning the Vietnam Moratorium dealing with penalization of students who elected not to attend regularly scheduled classes.

Student Government requests information demonstrating how wide spread was this blatant misinterpretation on the part of U.C. instructors, in what colleges were they most abundant, and finally, and most importantly, what will be done to ensure that NO student is in effect, implicitly or explicitly, penalized for non-attendance in class on October 15, 1969 as Dr. Langsam so guaranteed." A DIRECT LINE Investigat.

A. "It is impossible to know how widely President Langsam's policy statement on the Viet Nam Moratorium was misinterpreted on October 15, but I am convinced that the large majority of faculty members cooperated in both spirit and letter of the President's statement. If any student believes that his position in a class was prejudiced in any way by his failure to attend class on the day of the Moratorium, he should consult the dean of his college who will take appropriate steps. Should this seem to be inadequate to allay a student's concern, I shall be glad to talk with him personally about the problem." Dr. Thomas N. Bronner, Provost of Academic Affairs.

DIRECT LINE INFORMATION TO ALL STUDENTS: Report concerning improved registration procedures and problems to be solved in the future.

1. The system of advanced in-person registration for new studentsfunctioned very well during the summer. All colleges except the College-Conservatory of Music and the College of Design, Architecture, and Art invited the students to come onto the campus for a brief orientation followed by scheduling and registration. Orientation Board, in cooperation with the personnel deans, participated in this program so that in most colleges there was a program for both students and their parents. With the exception of some problems in the College of Education and Home Economics, the comments from both students and parents were extremely favorable and all of us involved in this program were delighted with the results.

2. While it is too early to be sure, it would appear at this date that the number of schedule changes necessitated by closures has been reduced. This is a direct result of the improvements in the Scheduling Division, under the direction of Mr. Wynne. As more time was available for scheduling, each college and department had an opportunity to react to closed section situations. The final measure of improvement will not be known until later in the quarter. The standard withdrawal regulations that were recommended by the Committee have been adopted by most of the colleges, but as yet, not by all. As a result, we are not able to publish this policy as a universally adopted rule.

3. The master schedule of courses that was published in advance of the preregistration in May was well received and was very useful. The classroom schedule for the Autumn Quarter was published approximately two weeks in advance of the classes and has been widely distributed as

Hats back on an idiot

One of the most splendid,晨报ing bits of journalism is the review. Critics of the classic world take a pomposo, stilted tone when reviewing the work. Yet, they further doted. So I shall summon and subject object or phrase around it. Also, with a unique sensitivity, he can communicate the truth.

Kinks album satirizes British life
by Dave Hinsberg
"You're A Good Man Charlie Brown" opens this week at the Park Theatre. A long time ago, his country is still "a picture. Anonymity. "Two c~ o~ :"

One of his odd children, and also the father of twenty-one children. Perhaps the oddest, left some odd quotes. "What makes the album humorous is the unexpected juxtapositions of words," says Professor Peter Schickele has remarked. "What makes the album humorous is the unexpected juxtapositions of words, parallel motions in music and lyrics, and the verbal building of the instruments." Professor Schickele is a proficient enough to be familiar with his way, occasionally show out standing talent, being proficient enough to be furthered.

The album provides a refreshing look at the serious subject of the music. The words of Professor Schickele, "the road to munchkins" Hell must be paved with P.D.Q. Bach compositions.

Kinks album satirizes British life, the generals' relaxation for the listener as the total reality of a serious bagpipe. "Some Mother's Son" explains. In this song, a tragic-comic situation is in Vlndvonic and Linda Thankygren, who have to be f W' t Chur hill' owns airs, In an enjoyef th t d all f th "Th' d .. some 0 Ins on urc IS. f I d

The highlight of the album is P.D.Q. Bach's "opulent, 'innovative" "Peanuts" strip." The "Peanuts" strip is a favorite comic strip of the Kinks' lead singer, who is known for his love of music. The album is "a programme of songs, nothing more," according to John Philip Sousa.

One track on the bagpipe often emblemizes the music, which does not suffer. Each track on this album will stand on its own as rock. Ray Davies, composer-vocalist, is responsible for most of the story and lyrics. With the release of this album, he is almost certain to have more interest of respect of British nobility and commoners alike. He can manipulate the words just the way he wants. He is more revealing than sanctimonious. Davies can take a single subject or object and make it a character around it. Also, with a unique sensitivity, he can communicate the truth.

The band delivers this song with unshaken pomposo pride. The land of hope and glory, land of the English and their pride, changing from bold pride of the English to a revolver (or is it mocking revolvers) delivery? How good the time was. Victoria has lots of pride on it.

And of course, it has always been a great honor to serve your country's military, as "Yes Sir, No Sir" explains. It is this song, everybody gets a chance to speak: "What do I behave?" the recruiter ("pack course without Davies humor."

The next track, "Some Mother's Son" is a brief refrain fades into a brief vignette known Second City Revue! It is an understated musical salute to glimpse of reality and temporality of music reiterating what we've Chicago and the Committee on Public Broadcasting.

'Arthur' stars in Kinks latest enjoyable put-ons on this album. Arthur's wife, or any middle-class Britisher has come home and "She's Bought A Hat Like Princess Marina." How neat. A gentle harpichord and piano begin the song. It's quite proper, the hat is. Although she wears it when she's cleaning the window...or wears it when she's scrubbing the stairs. Arthur's son has no social distinction and, besides, she can't afford the time.

Then suddenly, as if the words and vocal don't give you enough of an idea, a kazoo and assorted jug band instruments enter and make the whole situation, as well as the song, ludicrous. "You sure can't believe that they? Of course not, Arthur. Of course not.

As his son and family sail off for Australia. Arthur's desperation becomes more hopeful. He has just been rejected by his own family. He is depressed. But wait, who's singing? Oh, the Kinks. What, what are they saying?

"Arthur we like you and we want to help you."

They do, they will? Gee, that's great. They certainly are kind. But do they mean it? Of course. When have they ever made fun of you or put you on?

You certainly can't believe that they think you've behind help. Can you? Now that you've been rejected, they wouldn't let you walk down a blind alley. Would they? Of course not, Arthur, of course not.

The general mood and rhythmic movement of this song is quite similar to the Beatles' "Good Morning." It is, in fact, the record's one boring cut.
