by Bill Masterson
Newswriter

With the intent of securing needed changes in the design of health, safety and proper conditions to be caused in French Hall, Improvements Committee has prepared and submitted a detailed report of conditions in French Hall. The report was prepared at the suggestion of Robert M. Bay, director of housing services.

The report, prepared by Committee Advisor David Rosenfeld, Chairman Peter E. Lapointe, Co-chairman Dr. Leonard Benfield and Secretary Michael Cerveny, specified the necessity for physical and health education, aided in arranging facilities for the program.

Co-chairmen of this year’s “COOL NEWS” Greek Week event, senior political science major and member of Phi Kappa Theta fraternity, John Leopold, and senior English major and member of Theta Phi Alpha, Mary Ballenger, majoring in political science, expressed their desire for the community service project. They mentioned that the theme chosen was “Sigma Alpha Mu fraternity.

Faculty members must live with inadequacies

by Bob Taft

"It is an outrage for a faculty member to have to work in an office that he is not allowed to occupy," said an irate occupant of 423B, A-1 Cincinnati Center last Wednesday night. "I have been in the same room for five years." The room is a faculty office that was previously occupied by the late William F. Jenike, Assistant Professor of English, and whose successor is again occupying the office.

Many faculty members must contend with inadequate office space. Numerous offices in the college, according to a faculty representative, have experienced occupants who have occupied the same office for a considerable length of time. Problems include inadequate space, lack of a private office, and the necessity of sharing an office with another faculty member.

One faculty member, who has been occupying the same office for five years, is concerned with the lack of a private office. He states that he has not been able to work effectively in the office because of the noise and distractions. He also mentions that he has been denied a private office due to the lack of available space.

Another faculty member, who has been occupying the same office for two years, is concerned with the lack of adequate space. He states that he has been unable to work effectively due to the small size of his office. He also mentions that he has been denied a private office due to the lack of available space.

The University's Office of Planning and Budgeting is currently working on a plan to address the issue of inadequate office space. The plan includes the allocation of funds for the renovation of existing offices and the construction of new offices.

Chaos, confusion reign in Friday's symposium

by Jon Reich

A symposium on "Activating Creative Education" began as part of the Spring Arts Festival Friday afternoon in the Losantov House. The event, which was titled "The Grateful Dead," brought their music to the Armatory Field.

The event was organized by the Intergovernment Affairs Committee, which is responsible for coordinating the Spring Arts Festival. The committee was able to secure a permit from the University and the community.

The speakers for the event were scheduled to speak about the importance of creativity and its role in education. However, the event was marred by confusion and chaos, which led to the cancellation of the event.

The event was scheduled to begin at 1 p.m., but the speakers began arriving late. The speakers were expected to speak for 30 minutes each, but the event continued for over two hours. The event was also marred by technical difficulties, including a power outage and a malfunctioning sound system.

Changes in freshman orientation to include midsummer program

Mr. Charles Evans, bishop, mayor of Fayette, Mississippi, and brother of the slain civil rights leader Medgar Evers, will not speak in the Great Hall Thursday as previously scheduled. His talk, on "Contemporary Problems and the Law," has been tentatively rescheduled for April 21.

The free lecture is sponsored co-operatively by the T.U.C. Special Events Committee, the Cultural Events Committee and the Law School.

Memories," said Tom Daly, president of Men's Advisory System. "Men's and Women's Advisory Systems, in conjunction with Orientation Board, will be sponsoring a completely new format for freshman orientation. Beginning in July, all incoming male freshmen will be invited to spend one night in Calhoun Hall. Pre-admission registration, campus and college orientation, and luncheons will make up the day's activities.

Approximately 200 freshmen per day will be under the guidance of 12 full-time student orientation leaders (SOL). Each freshman will pay $12 for the room in Calhoun and all meals.

Last year's orientation was held in the summer and, according to Daly approximately 95% of the freshmen and their parents who commented on the program last year recommended that it be continued this year.

Following the summer orientation will be a one day orientation in the fall. This will include campus tours and a total college orientation.

Petitions for the advisory system are available at the offices of the Dean of Men and the Dean of Women at the University Center Information Desk. Two hundred student advisors are needed for next year, with the only requirement being a 2.0 accru.

Those students who want to petition for the SOL positions should get in touch with the Orientation Board through the Dean of Men's office.

"YOU NEVER HEARD IT SO GOOD!"
Ombudsman priorities

At this time, a joint student-faculty committee is in the process of evaluating petitions submitted by those who wish to be nominated for University ombudsman. What the committee must concern itself with now are priorities in the qualifications for this office.

The committee has suggested two main qualifications: the nominee must have complete knowledge of all University regulations, and must be able to effectively communicate with all members of the University community.

Unfortunately, these specifications are too general for effective use in this situation. What is required is commitment to particular requirements. First, by employing even a broad interpretation of the above, they must limit choices to individuals who, in the committee's opinion, would be unwise to appoint anyone from outside the university.

The main chosen should be personally familiar with members of the administration, particularly those responsible Dr. Thomas Bonner, Provost for Academic Affairs and Dean of Students Jim Scully, as well as the entire realm of collegiate deans and department chairmen.

These are the offices a student would most frequently need contact with.

It is questionable whether an undergraduate student with a full academic program could seriously expect to have the time to develop such relationships but to simultaneously devote himself to his tasks.

In the same vein, it would also be somewhat improbable that such an individual would apply himself collectively, unless he could release himself from his academic responsibilities.

The best candidate might be a faculty member, perhaps one who has served on the executive committee of the faculty, or at least someone with extensive experience on several faculty committees.

Regardless of the particular classification of the individual, it is incumbent upon the committee to search for a clearly qualified candidate, not just fragments of it.

In addition this year, it will be much easier for students to continue to select by this method. Now it's that time of year again, when a fresh group of students will choose the Student Body President. For some, the choice for whom to vote is difficult at this time to pick a winner in the race for Student Body President comes at a time crucial for the preservation of a balance between liberty and authority which is compatible with an academic environment.

Both campus and off-campus students over the nomination of university candidates, with the rhetoric and tactics of student government answers student governmental problems. Often we suggest for those who are marginally interested in student government, that in a modern campus in greater profusion than ever before, freedom from apathy should be their ultimate goal.

As the controversy rages over the marijuana legalization issue, it seems very odd that so many intelligent people tend to minimize the relevance of a similar question of the not too distant past.

In 1919 the federal government outlawed the use of any alcohol for the purpose of human consumption. Its reason: that alcohol is detrimental to the human body and would only serve to disgust society. However, in the face of overwhelming popular opinion and widespread unremorse of the law, the government repealed it.

The anti-prohibitionists got their way, but we all are paying the price. 30,000 traffic deaths last year caused by drinkers. Social aspects are almost as appalling. Five million alcoholics, and countless millions of irresponsible acts committed after the consciousness has been anesthetized by alcohol.

The ramifications of legal marijuana are analogous to alcohol. Although it is not physically addictive, a psychological dependence on marijuana can develop, a potential problem at least as serious as alcoholism. Also, the chemicals in marijuana can cause hallucinations and interfere with normal motor coordination in the same manner as alcohol.

You can light up a joint almost anywhere, anytime; it only takes a minute or two. If people on our highways would drive sober and not use in drinking, we might in some small bit of a way.

Theoretically, a printing press or a typewriter will work fine for the machinery. The "not as bad as alcohol" argument gets weak when applied to the automobile, for certainly it would be impossible to enforce a "no one smoking and driving" law.

Even the least potent domestic variety of marijuana has been proven to distort perception and judgment—both so necessary in the safe operation of motor vehicles. Anything less than 100 per cent control of the faculties present on a widespread scale would multiply the carnage on our highways.

But like a child arguing for a lollipop before supper, they turned it full and comprehended the whole picture. The "not as bad as alcohol" argument gets weak when applied to the automobile, for certainly it would be impossible to enforce a "no one smoking and driving" law.

Because of the many concerned members of the News Record staff that took their time to go to the Senate meeting Wednesday night, the Senate sent the bill to the Inter-governmental Affairs Committee for investigation on two main points:

Failure to include the parade in last year’s program, plus generally bad weather during the week, contributed to a general feeling of disappointment. The aid for more widespread participation in this year’s schedule has also caused the fraternities and sororities to invite non-Greeks to their traditional exchange dinners. “Normally people from different Greek houses went around to different houses and got to meet new people,” Winters said. “But this year we started inviting also the independents and residence hall people. Ousley’s relief work sparks Cincy

by Jeff Silverberg
NR Sports Writer

As a graduating senior, Jim Ousley doesn’t have to worry about spring football practice this year. And Bearcat baseball coach Glenn Sample is ecstatic about the addition of the ex-quarterback to his diamond squad. The reason for Sample’s pleasure is the brilliant performance Ousley turned in yesterday afternoon in Toledo. U.C. had dropped the first game of a double-header, and found themselves in danger of blowing a three-run lead in the nightcap. Toledo had scored once, and coaches by only one vote. MacMurray’s all-opponent squad.

Potential UC students introduced to campus life

Campus stations compete, WFB vs Calhoun's WGDI

Although WFB is recognized as the official U.C. radio station, there is a second amateur radio station on campus. The station is WGDI, operating since 1967 out of Calhoun Hall. WFB's greatest hope is to someday be designated as another "official campus station."

Founded by two disgruntled, ex-FIB jocks, it has existed since 1967 mainly on the strength of solicitation and determination shown by its student sponsors. Starting out with a budget of "whatever we could find in our pockets," GDI has put together an own game-sound. Actually in found out what we were doing where WGDI has no authorization wrong after we did it. "As yet to broadcast," stated a student. "We usually WFIB comes into other areas solicit advertising." contiriu~ed,"Actually there is a second amateur broadcasting. audiences are indicative of many strides toward success. WGDI's answer to this question on their lines through the phone boxes, must hear us."

From the phone company to run through at least once a day. They Calhoun Hall (and possibly other Tangeman's University) Sales and Solicitation Board, to another "official campus ourselves as amateurs" they are WGDI, operating since 1967 out WFIB General Manager stated'.

The many commuters enrolled in a roughly, estimated 5,400." actually, WFIB does, reach a difference in figures. Although no study has ever proved unavailable, and was I?-0t week and they're going to give us speaker. , concert, according to Winters. "At days," Winters said. But Muskie with United Artists for the last cancellation of the Greek Week which-it may be "Boys in the House" at U.C. to more than 390 potential freshmen and their parents were then invited to a question and answer session while the students went to programs in the various colleges. To highlight the evening the students were invited to a boating lunch aboard the "Chaperone." Although the boat couldn't move due to the high river there was plenty to do inside. A gambling casino, films, and a dance were available to finalize the glimpse of U.C. life."

Premier movie to replace concert for Greek Week

Although first one group was rejected for breaking previous engagements, and then a scheduled replacement group canceled. "Wives and Wives" was with United Artists for the last week they're going to give us a premier movie" to replace the concert, according to Winters. "At this time they won't tell us which—it may be "Boys in the Band" or "Women in Love"—but it will be a premiere. Among other scheduled events are talks by faculty members following one of the dishes, the "Greek goddess" contest on April 10, and the traditional Greek games and chariot races, scheduled for Nimper Stadium at noon on April 11.

"I think we've got candidates from all but three of the fraternities right now," according to the chairman. One of the fraternities is its contestant disqualified by Dean of Women's Office on the basis of her grade average. Additionally, black fraternities have had a problem entering candidates because "the rules that Panhelion's Council formulated upon us said that the Greek house candidates had to be a minority girl," Winters said. Only one black actress is participating in Greek Week, limiting potential choices for the goddess candidate.

Armageddon, one of the most controversial groups now on tour, will present a concert at 8:00 p.m. in Wilson Auditorium, Wednesday, April 8. This group of students and professionals who make up Armageddon have come together with the specific purpose of communicating through song and dialogue their solution to the questions many students are asking today.

Traveling as part of Campus Crusade for Christ International, Armageddon is not a religious college show, but the proponent of a new lifestyle. Their frank approach to a real and vital subject has helped many university men and women in their honest search for truth. One student commented after hearing Armageddon's concert, "All the top professional groups have exploded my mind with questions, but Armageddon, with its exciting new beat, has for the first time, satisfied me with answers."

Moore's announces formation of young Ohioans for Lukens at UC

In a recent press conference Lew Moore, a sophomore at the University of Cincinnati, announced the formation of a campus chapter of Young Ohioans for Lukens for Governor at the University of Cincinnati. Moore, an editor of the campus newspaper and officer of the campus Young Republican Club, noted that "Congressman Lukens is the only Republican candidate for Governor who can appeal to the youth of Ohio. His forthright approach to issues which interest students, his willingness to listen to young ideas and his dynamic energy as Ohio's youngest Congressman make him an immensely popular figure among students.

Moore then introduced Gregory F. Rose, a freshman from Hamilton, Ohio, as the campus coordinator. Noting the importance of certain issues to college students, Rose said, "Pollution, education, mental health--these are recognized by students as crucial issues in Ohio's future. The fact that Congressman Lukens views them with similar concern is heartening to many students. His emphasis on pollution control, improved education and better care for the mentally ill is a primary factory in mobilizing support among young people."

Rose remarked that the campus campaign was already active at the University of Cincinnati. "We have already begun a campus opinion poll and voter registration drive. We hope to gain approximately 500 votes in the primary from eligible upper-class voters at U.C."

Further, Rose said that over 100 students had already volunteered to campaign for Congressman Lukens and that the campus organization was cooperating with the Hamilton County Lukens Committee, J. Howard Sundeman Jr., Hamilton County Lukens Chairman, welcomed the U.C. Young Ohioans for Lukens as "a great asset to the campaign in Hamilton County."

The appointments of Moores as campus chairman and Rose as campus coordinator were made by Jim Hays, chairman of the State Young Ohioans for Lukens.

Publish or perish questioned

Complaint, suggestion, question on... Hang-up, Write Brian Zakem's Direct Line, 1040 Towanda Terrace, Cincinnati, Ohio 45216. Name and college position required. Name will be withheld on request. Sponsor-Student Senate.

Q. What is your view of the University's policy toward "Publish or Perish?" Do you think for example, that a competent advisor and teacher should advance in the University and with the same merit given his contemporaries in the same field? Who publishes heavily? If not, what is your alternative suggestion?

Mrs. John S. Warren, Special Student, A&S.

A. "The University of Cincinnati does not have a publish or perish policy. There is no rigid schedule of numbers of publications per period of time which must be met or if a faculty member's appointment is to be renewed or if he is to receive tenure. Rather, our process of faculty evaluation is quite broad. The standards which the Provost's Office recommends were set forth in our letter to the faculty, dated May 21, 1969. In brief, they are as follows:

1) A faculty member is expected to demonstrate as a teacher. This not only involves classroom performance, but also includes such activities as advising, thesis supervision and individual conference work.
2) The faculty member should be a productive and creative participant in the affairs of his own field of experience. This usually involves research or scholarship which leads to publication. It may, however, be embodied in works of art, participation in community affairs or professional activities related to his discipline.
3) Campus Service: A faculty member is expected to participate meaningfully in the affairs of his department, college and the University. Although in most cases this will only consume a minor portion of an individual's time, in some instances outstanding contributions here may offset deficiencies in other aspects of his total campus activity.

4) Community Service: Many faculty members are active in community affairs in ways not closely related to their own fields of specialization. Significant contributions here are of value to the University and the community as a whole and are viewed favorably in considering a faculty member's total performance. Anyone interested in a more detailed statement of these principles may secure a copy of the May 21 letter from my office.

Epitaph to an Affaire

Something is missing; like a painting
Of a face with no features ...
No eyes to gaze into, no mouth to smile ...
It is apparent that we never existed,
But lived only in a world of fantasy,
A world in which clouds never obscured the sun.

Then, as an instant gust of wind, beauty once existed in splendor.
I am gone to seek a certain Infinitely alone, I turn to no one for contemplation .As who can they be that are able that rewards with beauty and desire, Pain stabs like a knife thrown and as quickly as a cloud shuts out the moon, Cold become the veins.
In which warmth once flowed.
Dead became the love never born.

Earth

You, misty vapors of sun soaked afternoons, rural grassy hilltops and lovely green pastures, loved the days, grew through evenings alone, together ... fresh youthful years, seasons ago rooted in my memory and years; fertile soil replenished by our living souls.

Lapped Pause
Give me a purple increment And let me push it up and down, A little better understanding Would make the time and town; But when you buy an ancient gap, Understanding can't be found, And deeds you do the instant can put you in the ground.

Evolving Syllables
With bands of ivory on my wrists, And rings of rubied gold on slender fingers
To reflect the paleness of a rounded moon, I walked among the many friends This world has tried to give me; Upon the steps of summer, I stopped a while to gaze at Heat waves in the sand;

And good, arose with "Adieu". All is past, All is calm. The student, studious and good, Lies without a problem; He lies dozed to be cool. The advisor, on high still, Pours a toast to wisdom! Advice, splencty, there was. But why give it to someone?
It is so easy to give, Just the right voice, Just the right unser, Just the right choice: "There is a bush. There is a hedge. There is a wall. Go bang your head."

Good News isn’t. It is a record on Columbia that suffers from about as many faults as are possible while remaining saleable. The music itself consists of a guitar and violin cello – nice combination. The voices, however, are vaguely similar to Jim Kwatin and Geo Muldaur doing an imitation of the Everly Brothers with croaks. Add the bad vocals to the good instrumentation and you get a nasty incoherence. This incoherence is worsened by attempting to make every cut a piece of soothing music. The songs have the unfortunate quality of all sounding alike. Musically and, nearly as bad, philosophically the same trend continues throughout the record.

The many possible effects of the guitar – cello combination are held to a bare minimum. Each follows the same rhythm pattern, has the same instrumental-vocal interplay, and says the same thing. The philosophy is straight Christian, all kinds of nice lyrics about prayer and revolution, there’s even a piece on the power of non-violence and love. It’s so Christian it even refers to God as “the Word”. The entire thing might have been conceived by a good natured man in an attempt to “turn youth on to Christ and the Bible”. No offense to the Christians, but for 45 minutes and 16 seconds of Biblical drivel by poor voices press the limits of endurance. The record lacks the spontaneity necessary for a successful album. Indeed, the entire thing seems forced. The lyrics are sometimes couched in Middle English, even when they are understandable, they are meaningless. There seems to be a lack of polish prevalent in the set; perhaps there was a deadline to meet and no further recording or mixing sessions could be scheduled. A manager may have Credence Clearwater Revival, Crosby Stills and Young, The Who, Joe Cocker, Moody Blues and The Rolling Stones will not appear at U.C.

They have been appearing on other campuses across the country this year.

Why not U.C.?

U.C.’s Concert Committee consists of 30 students and one faculty advisor. This body decides which groups will appear on the U.C. campus. Last year the students of U.C, were invited to the Blue Grass Andy Williams and Peter Nero. This year U.C. was endorsed by John Hartford, Herbie Mann, New York Rock & Roll Ensemble, Blind Faith, and The 5th Dimension. Hartford and Mann fell to fill Wilson, N.Y.R.R. followed suit in their appearance at the Friday night. B.S. and T. and 5th Dimension are the only groups to appear on campus before a sell-out audience.

U.C.’s Concert Committee receives a list of open dates for concerts at the beginning of each year from Campus Calendar. This in turn receive their open dates from the Athletic Department which decides when the football season is available.

“My schools like Ohio University will find the groups they want and when they’re available then clear the facility for the concert, we have to do just the opposite” said Jim Melzer, chairman of U.C. Concert Committee.

Concert Committee then evaluates what the production costs, which includes promotion, printing of tickets and the erection of chairs.

An interesting fact is that after the local Plant workers set up the chairs they charge Concert Committees for their services. These figures are considered against the potential gross of a sell-out crowd at the fieldhouse. The evaluation of production costs tells Concert Committee the number of seats they must sell to cover costs up to this point.

After production costs are considered, the agency the group committee has chosen is contacted.

“This is the first year the students on the committee are picking the groups they want. In past years the advisor made the final decision, said Melzer, a pre-senior in CCM.

This year Concert Committee has a new faculty advisor, John Schoof.

Concert Committee receives a yearly budget from Department of $1,200. This means Concert Committee must evaluate what they will have to pay the groups against the potential gross of a sell-out crowd.

At this stage, the size of the fieldhouse enters the picture. Ohio University and Miami University both recently completed new structures on their respective campuses to be used for concerts and sporting events.

MUSIC ’70 presents Die Rebete April 9 at 8:30. Admission is free.

Who plans the concerts?

Both centers seat over 12,000 people as compared to the U.C. fieldhouse which seats 8,000 people.

Presently the U.C. Concert Committee lacks the budget and facility to acquire constant popular student entertainment.

Two famous one act plays by Eugene Ionesco, "Les Chaises" and "La Lecon" will be presented on Thursday, April 9, matinees at 12:15, evening at 8:30, under the auspices of Alliance Francaise. The performances will be in Xavier University Center Theatre. The performers are Le Treteau de Paris, a troupe of young French actors. The production opens its 11th Annual American tour with the Two Parisian comedians.

Ionesco, avant-garde French playwright, was elected in January to the French Academy, 300 years old club of the Establishment. His play "Les Chaises" (the Chairs) deals with the theme of loneliness exemplified by an old couple whose expected visitors never come. When first produced, it infuriated Ionesco's now famous "Theatre of the Absurd." Tickets for matinee or evening are $3.50, student rate $2.50. For ticket information call 821-0790, or tickets may be had at the door.
