The University of Cincinnati Senate defeated a two-month tuition increase next week a state education budget proposal Monday night, when Acting President James Robbins voted against it.

Yates views Blumenstock as just adequate...

By Marc Schelhase

"Blumenstock was a good manager," said Tyron Yates, new student body president, adding that fans were "impressed. He was strong and could say yes or no. It was difficult to pull people in and I admire that." Yates described Blumenstock's weakness as an inability to "articulate the goals of student government to enough people to truly accomplish something. People have to be given a lot of room to room," he said.

There was not much public discussion during Blumenstock's administration but there was a good deal of internal discussion, according to Yates. "I don't like 'no' men around me," he said. "I want people around me to debate each other and fight a little up until the time that make the final decision. It's healthy." Yates said UC is closer to a good academic advising system than it has ever been, thanks to Blumenstock. Yates sees the student government president's role in the state subsidy revision lobbying as an influential one. "I've been getting feedback from [state representatives] Maloney and Bowen and have been keeping alert on what the situation is to keep the students informed," he said.

Blumenstock left him with a student government that is in "fair condition" and one in which the Admissions, Personnel and other departments are Responsive to Yates, said. The Admissions and Personnel will be the recreation of new people. "We are already drafting timelines and specific goals to work toward," he said.

"Student government is very important. We must attract the student body to try to be winning," he said. "The students are, what's at stake," he said.

"The student government office has researched a media recruitment program advertising in the newspaper, on the radio and TV stations and in local papers. "This is the first time an administration is using the media to gain a staff," Yates said.

"In analyzing the Blumenstock-Gradyn Administration, newly-elected student body president was very critical. Blumenstock was Secretary of Finance for student government last year. "The Rosemary Gradyn, former vice president got off on too many tangents," he said. "She's not a leader but when elegant or straightforward she worked harder than hell on it." Hau said Gradyn failed to deal constructively with Student Senate. "Because of her interaction, Senas had no choice but to deal with itself and become institutional," he said. Commering for Student Council, Hau said, "Things they did the work and the rest was along for the ride." He commended Gradyn's handling of the collective bargaining process, he said. "I disagreed with some things. I would have gotten a petition and stopped it on Berks' desk first," he said.

"Gradyn also confirmed the prior administration for keeping students and faculty out of the collective bargaining negotiations. "There are two ways to look at what we get," he continued, "either we had nothing and we had it all. We worked on half. With Senas, we only had 50% of what we had." He said that the relationship between Administration and Student Senate had become better, "The first action of his administration will be the recruitment of new and Blumenstock created much tension. "We get real nasty and ugly, but it's good for the people out but things stood still at the end of the year," he said. Gradyn continued. The student cabinet appointments were a bonus, he said. "Only a few did any work and the rest were along for the ride." He commended Blumenstock's handling of the collective bargaining process, he said. "I disagreed with some things. I would have gotten a petition and stopped it on Berks' desk first," he said. "Now the Administration has followed suit and the bargaining process government informed about what they are doing," he said.

"Hau and newly-elected student body president Tyre Yates plan to act as a team during the spring semester, utilize the newscast, the computer lab's facilities, and visit dorm houses to keep students informed--much of the most important information, according to Hau. "Blumenstock's leadership qualities are keen in certain areas, including collective bargaining."

Not a leader

"He wasn't a leader with the cabinet and he failed to motivate people to do things on their own," Hau said. "Student government wasn't allowed to act as an independent representative of the student body." He said the big failures of Blumenstock's administration included not enough exposure in dealing with the student body, the administration, and local government. "He didn't have enough responsibility and freedom to make a change," he said. The administration's dependence on a few people to do most of the work, and Blumenstock's allowing Senate to become institutionalized was a problem.

"Blumenstock provided no real leadership and a constant state of hypotension existed year after year," according to Hau. "He ran the past year as only "far" and said although student government "didn't really mean much, things up" it made little headway either.

"They did the mechanics well but neglected the important issues," he said, adding, "They weren't concerned with what they looked and their public image."

Blumenstock-Gradyn: A one issue student government?

“It was vital in issues such as collective bargaining controversy. Communication within our student government as the presidents or cabinet and felt there were a close working relationship among the presidents or cabinet and felt there were a close working relationship among the presidents.”

The student government that was disadvantage,” Blumenstock said. “I don’t think Senate was a strong student government, but it was my issue.”

Mr. Scheineson's version wasn't to form the student body about student government. “We probably didn’t rely on the media sufficiently,” he said. “I’m not the kind of person who does things that should about them, I just do them quietly.”

According to Blumenstock, much of the activities involved in their discussions, and should not have been published until the process was completed. He has been charged with “discrimination against blacks,” according to Blumenstock.

No increase

University officials have received proposals to increase dormitory room and board rates next year. This has led to a consideration of reducing the dormitory rates and board charges. It is also expected that the dormitory costs will increase by $150. This is especially true in view of last year's $24 hike. The rate increase would be a burden to the University's students grades and living conditions in the dorms. Rates might take action to keep the residence halls solvent. And, any attempt to improve dorm living conditions is admirable.

But, in the light of the recent disclosure that the current food service has not been adequately controlled. The increase in rates might be a result of the University's attempt to maintain its services. As much as $20,000, we question the necessity of any dorm rate increase.

We hope that part of this "positive effect" will be to keep dorm fees down as well. Because we all want to be here to study and not to work.

Most of our people in Israel and the Jewish community in Palestine are eligible for full financial aid, including free tuition. However, we want to point out that those who were designated to become a home for the Jewish natives was first purchased in 1922. Transjordan was amalgamated into it from a British imperialist, into the idea of an independent Jewish state. "We have it to say for our people.

Most of the people of the land was again partitioned between the Jews and the Muslims. The United Nations General Assembly in November, 1947, the vacuum, representing a number of countries who had interests of their own, has watched over the question of partition and tried to make sure that the political changes eventually worked. The UN eventually succeeded in the West Bank and Gaza Strip, not only to protect the native rights of the largest minority, but also to ensure that they are not an inconvenience to the Arab world.

The Palestinian struggle today is a proof of the last fact that we still want the Jewish part of the country to be part of the Jewish state.

With any luck they may be able to make a lasting appeal. And we are also a chance for the Vietnamese to remain in the United States. The Department is focusing on the possibility that some of the refugees who have been arrested in the past few days may be deported to Vietnam.

A defense of Zionism

As Itrales we have a feeling that some elementary concepts about Israel and its people are not understood, and we would like to try to make clear that the Zionist movement which has been called the "Zionist" movement is not a movement of people. It is not a movement of people that has not been understood by the Jewish people. It is a movement of people that has not been understood by the Jewish people.

We feel that the idea of Zion is the idea of a Jewish state. It is the idea of a Jewish state that has not been understood by the Jewish people.

The shoe
you wear on your face introduces the sandal you wear on your face.

Only The Nature Shoe could bring you a sandal that feels so good as The Nature Sandal does. A feeling that begins in your feet and winds up in the shoe on your face.

Because nothing you can wear on your feet — outside of nothing at all — is as comfortable as The Nature Shoe. And our sandals are just that much better to wear nothing at all.

Like The Nature Shoe, the sole of our sandals is a carefully designed form for your feet, which takes into consideration the way your foot is shaped and the way you were meant to walk in the first place.

Your heel has an arch, so The Nature Sandal has an arch.

Your foot has a heel, so The Nature Sandal leaves room for your heel.

And the heel is lower than the toe because that’s how your weight is most naturally distributed.

And The Nature Sandal is STURDY. Because it’s made from only the highest quality materials and workmanship. So strong by The Nature Shoe Store.

Walk out with a grin from toe to toe.

New insurance plan offers wider coverage

By Richard Mason

The University has selected the Pennsylvania National Life Insurance Co. for an optional health insurance plan available to all full-time students during the 1975-76 academic year, according to Stasby Escott, dean of student services.

The agreement, called the Student Assistant and Sickmen Insurance Plan (SASP), was reached recently with the Pennsylvania National Life Insurance Co. of Philadelphia, Pa. It included a dental "rider" covering impacted wisdom teeth and an optional maternity plan for married students, Escott said.

The student health insurance program is "more comprehensive and better suited to the students' needs," the Student Program Board has been Informed, according to a letter. Trojanski, advisor to the Student Program Board and coordinator of cultural activities and programs, informed student organizations funded by the Board of the need for such a program.

We (the Administration) have no option but to inform the student that this program is necessary. We feel that the Student Program Board, in turn, will inform the students who are covered.

The Student Program Board has been informed that the SASS will begin operating on July 1, 1975. The Board will have the funds for the student programs step by step.

The first Cincinnati performances of two recent operas will be presented by the College-Conservatory of Music starting tonight at 8 p.m. Tomorrow's curtain will be at 8 p.m. There is a 2:30 matinee on Sunday.

The Conservatory's "Don Quichotte" ("Don Quixote") for the Chicago Lyric Opera and "The Barber of Seville" for the Seattle Opera. In July, they are directing "Il Torrero" for the Cincinnati Opera.

Robert Sadin, music director of the CCM Philharmonia Orchestra, will conduct a 13-member chamber orchestra for "The Poor Sailor." Henry Venturi, co-founder on oboe and piano with the Cincinnati Symphony, is conductor of "The Bellows." Student designers of the two operas are Dennis Owens, sets, and David Broken, lighting. "The Poor Sailor" was inspired by a story about a husband who left his family for many years. When he returned, his very poor and faded wife didn't recognize him and he didn't recur to his idleness. Thinking he was a wealthy stranger, the wife didn't reveal his identity. Thinking he was a wealthy stranger, the wife didn't reveal his identity.

Linda Ronstadt: "you're pq good"

When taken literally, the words to Linda Ronstadt's hit, "You're No Good," could bring no more reflection of her performance at Northern. State University Tuesday night.

Oftentimes, a performer will make greater applause for certain songs more than others, but Linda Ronstadt's excellent performance was well-received by an enthusiastic audience after every single selection.

"It was a thrill to make a concert as we saw how to see Ronstadt's wide appeal is based on talent or good looks, but on her performance with both. It is equally likely to be moved by her, a capable, baby-faced demeanor, is to be secured by her voice and not by her looks. At first, she gave the audience the impression she was like a fresh and fragile flower. The audience, however, was disappointed when they found her to be a tough woman. In July, she is directing "II Trovatore" for both the San Diego Opera and the Seattle Opera. There is an atmosphere of sordid, poverty, violence and melancholy to present by the College.

Regrettably, Ronstadt was unable to be present for rehearsals. Her voice carries emotional qualities that are far from routine. In all of her roles, such as "You're No Good," "Break My Mind," and "Silver Threads and Golden Needles," her voice projected an honest, earnest quality that is unlike any other performer's. Her voice could sometimes even reach such an intense level of emotion that it was difficult to separate the music from the words at times. Greg Wahl: pitcher goes from criticism to plaudits

By Joe Gering

Greg Wahl has always been a controversial figure in baseball. Four years ago he was a high school pitcher and now he is pitching at the University of Cincinnati. Wahl has been praised for his pitching performance.

But Wahl also has been criticized for his pitching. Many people have criticized his pitching style, but Wahl has maintained his confidence and continued to improve his skills.

In recent years, Wahl has become more of a role model for younger players. He has been able to overcome criticism and continue to excel on the field.

Today and tomorrow the track closer now than when I was 10. Apologies for last week. Wahl's coach, Bob Schwarberg, said that Wahl had a good day in the rain and that the track was closer now than when he was 10. Apologies for last week.
