Ohio Senate trims UC subsidy revision

By Karen Diekmuller
Full Moon radio, WUCF's only student-produced program, was canceled Wednesday in an attempt to improve professionalism and in an effort to inherit the Full Moon format, according to George Bryant, the station's manager. Full Moon radio, one of two live radio performances WUCF played broadcast rock music from 2:46 a.m. weekdays and 3:40 a.m. on weekends.

Bryant had originally planned to cancel Full Moon July 7. When Bryant informed the Full Moon staff of the intention to terminate the program, he said, "I told them to come up to be professionall"

Bryant said that after the Full Moon

Summer newsrecord

This issue of the newsrecord represents the first of three issues to be published over the long, hot summer.

The remaining issue will be distributed July 17 and Aug. 6.

And remember, the newsrecord is for the summer newsrecord. should contact Mike Sloneker during the evening at 475-2748 or 861-0933.

The UC Department of Anthropology that Americans in the Ohio Valley 4000 years ago traded with others in the eastern and southeastern United States, according to Kent Vickery, assistant professor of anthropology. The artifacts, consisting of chert that time were hunters and gatherers. Extensive deposits of mussels in the Ohio River were indicated that the prehistoric people who lived in that area had utilized the resources of the river.

Vickery noted that there was "at least some interaction, if not trade relations, between the Ohio Valley and the Northeast." People in the Ohio Valley would have had access to the same types of food as those in the Northeast.

The Full Moon site is the largest of the buried rock music from 2:46 a.m. weekdays and 3:40 a.m. on weekends.

Cancellation triggers protest

Classical format replaces Full Moon radio

By Richard Mason
The UC Department of Anthropology that Indians in the Ohio Valley 4000 years ago traded with others in the eastern and southeastern United States, according to Kent Vickery, assistant professor of anthropology.

The artifacts, consisting of chert that time were hunters and gatherers. Extensive deposits of mussels in the Ohio River were indicated that the prehistoric people who lived in that area had utilized the resources of the river.

Vickery noted that there was "at least some interaction, if not trade relations, between the Ohio Valley and the Northeast." People in the Ohio Valley would have had access to the same types of food as those in the Northeast.

The Full Moon site is the largest of the buried rock music from 2:46 a.m. weekdays and 3:40 a.m. on weekends.
Summer hours

Sunshine, advice poured on 75 grads

By Joe Levy and Mike Stineker

Sunday, June 15, 1975—The old terminal at the Greater Cincinnati Airport was officially retired after two years of service. The decommissioned building was opened to the public for a farewell ceremony.

At 10 a.m., the building was filled with former airport employees, including Assistant Secretary of Transportation John Simmons, who served as chairman of the ceremony.

The event included a presentation by University of Cincinnati students, who had been working on a systems integration project designed to increase airport efficiency. The students were awarded a $2500 prize for their efforts.

In addition, the event featured a performance by the University's Glee Club, which had recently returned from a tour of Europe.

The ceremony concluded with a farewell address by Mayor Louis B. Stineker, who praised the airport for its contributions to the region's economy and commended the airport employees for their hard work.

"The airport has been a great asset to the city," Stineker said. "We are grateful for all you have done and wish you all the best in the future."
Showboat boasts full summer fare; 'Godspell' plays through Sunday

By Marie Meyers

The Majestic, Cincinnati's premier house for theatre in the summer, is in top form this season. Ethne Rutledge, director of the theater, has announced a summer schedule that promises to delight theater-goers of all ages. The Majestic, which has been a fixture in the city since 1949, will present a variety of shows, including musicals, plays, and films. The season will run from July 1 to August 30, offering something for everyone.

Among the highlights of the Majestic's summer schedule is the production of 'Godspell', directed by Wally S. Jones. This popular musical, which has been a staple of summer theater for over a decade, will feature a talented cast and is sure to delight audiences of all ages. 'Godspell' will be performed from July 19 to August 12, with tickets available at the Majestic's box office or online.

Another noteworthy production is the return of 'Showboat Shenanigans', first presented in 1978. This go-getting apprentice group will present a variety of fare for all ages, including 'Wicked' and 'A Gift of the Tongue'. Performances will take place from July 6 to August 31.

The Majestic's summer film series will also be a highlight of the season. The films, which will be shown in the Great Hall, Fields, and Winters, will include 'Rosemary's Baby', 'It's A Gift', and 'Dilbert'. In addition, a special screening of 'South Pacific' will be held on July 3, followed by a Q&A session with the actors.

Tickets for all shows are available at the Majestic's box office or online. Patrons are encouraged to purchase tickets in advance to ensure a seat for the performances.

The summer season at the Majestic is a testament to the dedication of the theater's staff and volunteers, and to the commitment of the UC Department of Theatre and Dance. With a full schedule of events and a wide variety of performances, the Majestic is sure to be a popular destination for theater-goers this summer.
By Harold Perlstein

Total sports conference mothballed; UC joins ‘Metro 6’

In a June 25, 1975 article, The News Record discusses the dissolution of the American All-Star League, a basketball conference that was formed to provide competition and fan interest for UC basketball. The article highlights the challenges faced by UC basketball, including the departure of key players and the difficulties in securing a competitive conference. It mentions the signing of two basketball recruits, Gary Yoder and Catlett, and their potential impact on the team. The article also discusses the perceived decline in the conference's standing and the move to join the Metro 6 conference. Additionally, it touches on the recruitment of Catlett and his role in the team's future success.